7.7. TRANSIT Stock Market Exchange

TRANSIT Stock Market Exchange allows you to sell or purchase electronic money from another TRANSIT User.

The trading interface consists of several parts:

1) In the left-hand upper part, there are two lists for selecting currencies; in the first list you can select the currency you want to buy or sell and in the second list, you can select the currency that you want to sell or buy. By default, Bitcoin is selected in the first field, TRANSIT USD is selected in the second field, i.e. you can sell Bitcoin and receive USD, or exchange USD and receive Bitcoin.

2) To the right are the buttons for managing the graph; by default, the selected period is 1D (1 day). To see a more detailed display, you can choose 12H (12 hour period). For a more extensive display, there are the following options: 3D (3 days), 1W (1 week), 1M (1 month) and ALL (the entire trading period for the selected currency pair is displayed).

3) Below is the reference information related to the selected pair:

- The “last price” is the price of the last sale transaction.
- “Bid” is the most favourable price at which you can sell a currency.
- “Ask” is the most favourable price at which you can purchase a currency.
- “Volume” is the total trading volume for 24 hours.

4) The graph is presented in the form of “Japanese candles” and displays the change in the price of the currency during the selected time period. Each candle represents a specific period (by default 30 minutes) and consists of the green (closing price is higher than opening price) or red (closing price is lower than opening price) “body” and upper/lower shadow (wick).

The upper and lower limit of the shadow shows the maximum and minimum prices for the period. The boundaries of the body reflect the opening and closing price. The chart also shows the trading volume in the form of a bar graph.

5) The “chat” section is located to the right of the chart; the “chat” section is not for technical support, the information in it is not considered to be factually reliable; never take the statements that are posted in the chat literally; many users may call for urgent sales because they want to buy or vice versa.

If you have any issues, please contact the Support Team (left-hand menu, “support” item), which offers brief answers to popular questions; if the problem is still not resolved, you can select the bottom option - “another question” - and contact the Support Team that will respond to your question very quickly.

6) Below you will see three blocks: “Buy”, “Sell” and “Command Block“. The “Buy” block contains orders that you can buy instantly (without waiting) at prices that other users have put up for sale. Orders are arranged according to how profitable they are for you – the cheaper, the higher. User orders in this block are grouped according to the exchange rate for ease of reference. This block also contains purchase history.

The “Sell” block contains orders that you can sell instantly (without waiting) at prices that other users have put up for purchase. Orders are arranged according to how profitable they are for you – the more expensive, the higher. User orders in this block are grouped according to the exchange rate for ease of reference. This block also contains sale history.

The “Command” block allows you to buy or sell a currency, as well as view “Active” orders and your purchase/sale history.

The “Active” tab contains orders that cannot be executed instantly (no counter orders). When you click on an order, you can see the current balance, which still needs to be sold or bought, as well as cancel the order. Orders can be cancelled not earlier than 5 minutes after creation (the restriction has been introduced for excluding spam orders). No cancellation fee is charged.

The “History” tab shows your purchase and sale history for all currency pairs. You can buy or sell orders instantly by selecting them in the appropriate blocks; to do this, click on the “order”, these orders will be instantly substituted into the “command block”; to complete the transaction you only need to click the “Buy” or “Sell” button. To buy/sell multiple orders, double-click on the last order selected in the list; its price and the sum of the higher orders will be substituted into the form. All orders can be redeemed in part. Please note that someone else may complete a transaction faster than you; in this case your order can be viewed in the “Active” tab.

Or you can create an order at your own price and wait for a counter order. In this case, the transaction may be more profitable, but not instant.

By specifying the price you set the maximum price (with purchase), i.e. orders will be purchased at your lower (more profitable) price and minimum (when sold), i.e. the sale may take place at your higher (more favourable) price.

In the form for creating an order, near the input fields, there is a link titled "ALL", which allows you to buy or sell a currency with all the money that you have on your account balance.

Commission for Trade options:

- 0.25% as default; 2.95% for users that connected high risk websites to their accounts;
